

Looking back at my plan from assignment one, my final project is not what I expected. The main reason is I did not know the limitations and capabilities of CSS and JavaScript. I feel because of the great increase in my knowledge of CSS and JavaScript abilities. If I were to restart my website I would make a much better product. As I developed my website I learned more and more about new concepts I wish I could have implemented into my original design. I do not think I will directly be able to use the website as a personal website as I created it to accomplish the goals set by the assignment instructions. Although, after finishing this project I believe I could use it as a base for a revamped website. Also, the fact that I learned a lot about the development process of a website and how important planning ahead is. This is to make sure there is room on my website for all the elements I know I can now implement. To summarize, I think the most important thing this assignment brought me was new knowledge on how to create a website but I believe if there was a little more freedom in requirements I could have had a better final project.
